One of the Best Summary Articles About Privacy

Posted on July 15, 2016 by admin

I have a great group of people around me. Thoughtful people. Thought-provoking people. People who rub me the wrong way and who challenge me to grow and think critically. These fine people send me articles that they read and most of them are good. But once in a while, one of these articles stops me in my tracks and when I'm done all I can say is "Wow.... I'm going to re-blog that now." This article entitled "Peak Indifference" is truly a winner. Why am I so excited? Because it says everything I want to say to people and now I don't have to write it. Do yourself a favour. When you read this, don't just sit there like a toad and say "Yeah I should do something." Just start. If you don't know what to do next, reply to this post and I'll be motivated to start helping you down the journey. Privacy is a long journey. I'm not there yet but I'm way further than I was 5 years ago. Except for a few foolish bread crumbs I've left around the internet, I'm starting to lose online importance which is just plain awesome. Here's the article again in case you didn't click and read it yet.
