

Wayne Out There (.com)

wayne-out-there

Stuff that matters to Wayne

Pokemon Go Away!

Posted on July 26,2016 by admin

Pokemon Go Away Forever. I didn't even like the original Pokemon playing cards. After all, the short form is 'pocket monster' and why on earth would I want my kids to have a monster in their pockets, let alone in their room or in my house? The great part about Pokemon Go is that I have never seen it with my eyes, nor cast a gaze on one of its players. I have never Pokemon'd myself - and I never will. But from what the general media is saying, a lot of people are Pokemonin' themselves around town. And the creeps and weirdos are all over it and the parents don't care. But then again - they didn't stop their kids playing with their smart phones and tablets so what's the big surprise that they are now getting lured into old vans down dark streets? Their phones lead straight to the prey and the gatekeeper was blissfully enjoying 'quiet time' with their own phone when it happened. So don't act all surprised when things fall apart. The buck stops with us adults. I believe Pokemon Go will be the catalyst towards change for a new group of people who realize that something is going seriously south with our world. How did my phone lead me here? How did they find out where I live? How did he know that I didn't like whole wheat bread? Something is very creepy. Something is very sinister. And these adults will look down at their mobile device and realize that they, too, have a monster in their pocket and the monster isn't Pokemon. The real pocket monsters are Apple and Google.

Posted in:Culture, Freedom And Privacy | Tagged:Apple, Google, Gps, Pokemon Go, Privacy, Security, Ubuntu | With 0 comments